AFFIDAVIT OF SHERRI MARIE PERONI

I, Sherri Marie Peroni, of the City of Windsor, in the County of Essex,

MAKE OATH AND SAY (or AFFIRM):

1. I am a legal assistant employed by Antoine d'Ailly Law Office, have knowledge of the matters herein deposed, and am familiar with the roadways and sidewalks in the areas in and around the entrance/exit to the Ambassador Bridge having resided in Essex County since 1983;
2. In the course of my employment, I have retrieved and viewed numerous online news articles published on or about February 11, 2022 regarding the protests occurring in the vicinity of the Ambassador Bridge, verified the status of border crossings by way of the "Border wait times: United States to Canada" webpage published by the Government of Canada, available at <https://www.cbsa-asfc.gc.ca/bwt-taf/menu-eng.html> (herein "CBSA Border Wait Time Report"), and retrieved and viewed numerous online articles regarding historic closures and delays at the Ambassador Bridge;

B-1-76

3. A Global News article from September 2011 reports three-hour delays along Huron Church Rd in Windsor in April of 2003, and quotes Mourice Faddoul, owner of the Windsor-based Moe's Transport whose company had 300 drivers and trucks crossing the border about 200 times a day as remembering a time "when it took so long to cross the Ambassador Bridge, portable toilets were installed along the route for desperate drivers". The article also references historic five-hour delays at the Ambassador Bridge. A copy of the article is attached hereto as EXHIBIT "A";
4. A Windsor Star article from July 2012 reports a bomb-threat resulting in Windsor Police being asked to close "our side of the bridge", resulting in international truck traffic being backed up more than 3 km along Huron Church Rd and 6-hour wait times at the border. The article also reports that as a result of the bomb-threat, a no-go zone stretching 1,000 yards, or less than 1 km, was set up on either side of the bridge by U.S. marine units and the RCMP. A copy of the article is attached hereto as EXHIBIT "B";
5. In marked contrast to the 1 km no-go zone established as a result of the above-referenced bomb-threat to the Ambassador Bridge in 2012, I observed online video evidence of law enforcement detaining a vehicle and its driver near the corner of Wyandotte St. W and Campbell Ave which is nearly 2 km away from entrance/exit of the Ambassador Bridge. The vehicle is adorned with numerous Canadian flags, which have become a symbol of the anti-mandate protests. A screenshot and link to the video depicting the incident is attached hereto as EXHIBIT "C";
6. According to a CTV News article dated December 12, 2012, a work disruption resulting from a labour dispute amongst CBSA Officers over personalized name tags resulted in border delays of 45 minutes at the Blue Water Bridge and 30 minutes at the Ambassador Bridge. A Copy of the article is attached hereto as EXHIBIT "D";
7. On Tuesday, February 1, 2022, the CBSA Border Wait Time Report indicated "45 minutes" at the Ambassador Bridge, "no delay" at the Windsor and Detroit Tunnel, and "7 hours" at the border crossing located in Coutts, Alberta. A printout of the webpage is attached hereto as EXHIBIT "E";

8. On Friday, February 4, 2022, the CBSA Border Wait Time Report indicated “no delay” at the Ambassador Bridge, the Windsor and Detroit Tunnel, the Blue Water Bridge, and the border crossing located in Coutts, Alberta. A printout of the webpage is attached hereto as EXHIBIT “F”;
9. On Monday, February 7, 2022, the CBSA Border Wait Time Report indicated “3 hours” at the Ambassador Bridge and “no delay” at the Windsor and Detroit Tunnel, the Blue Water Bridge, and the border crossing located in Coutts, Alberta. A printout of the webpage is attached hereto as EXHIBIT “G”;
10. On Tuesday, February 8, 2022, the CBSA Border Wait Time Report indicated “Temporarily Closed” at the Ambassador Bridge, “15 minutes” (Commercial Flow) at the Blue Water Bridge, and “no delay” at the Windsor and Detroit Tunnel and the border crossing located in Coutts, Alberta. A printout of the webpage is attached hereto as EXHIBIT “H”;
11. On Wednesday, February 9, 2022, the CBSA Border Wait Time Report indicated “Temporarily Closed” at the Ambassador Bridge, “no delay” at the Windsor and Detroit Tunnel, “4 hours 30 minutes” (Commercial Flow) and “No delay” (Travellers Flow) at the Blue Water Bridge, and “7 hours” at the border crossing located in Coutts, Alberta. A printout of the webpage is attached hereto as EXHIBIT “I”;
12. On Thursday, February 10, 2022, the CBSA Wait Time Report indicated “Temporarily Closed” at the Ambassador Bridge, “No delay” at the Windsor and Detroit Tunnel, “3 hours” (Commercial Flow) and “No delay” (Travellers Flow) at the Blue Water Bridge, and “7 hours” at the border crossing located in Coutts, Alberta. A printout of the webpage is attached hereto as EXHIBIT “J”;
13. A CBC news article published Friday, February 11, 2022 at 9:15am includes a photo of vehicles and protestors blocking three of four northbound lanes of traffic on Huron Church Rd. at the intersection of Huron Church Rd. and Tecumseh Rd, with a caption indicating that “Protestors blocking traffic to Windsor, Ont.’s Ambassador Bridge agreed to clear one lane Friday, allowing some flow of traffic exiting the bridge into Canada.” Traffic exiting the bridge into Canada would be traveling southbound on Huron Church Rd. A copy of the article is attached hereto as EXHIBIT “K”;

14. A Pandora Blogs article with the headline “Canada Bridge Protesters Agree to Open One Lane From U.S.” published February 11, 2022 at 2:06pm states that a group of protestors have choked off most access to the Ambassador Bridge. A copy of the article is attached hereto as EXHIBIT “L”;
15. On Friday, February 11, 2022, the CBSA Wait Time Report indicated “Temporarily Closed” at the Ambassador Bridge, “20 minutes” at the Windsor and Detroit Tunnel, “3 hours 30 minutes” (Commercial Flow) and “No delay” (Travellers Flow) at the Blue Water Bridge, and “7 hours” at the border crossing located in Coutts, Alberta. A printout of the webpage is attached hereto as EXHIBIT “M”;
16. On Saturday, February 12, 2022, the CBSA Wait Time Report indicated “Temporarily Closed” at the Ambassador Bridge, “5 minutes” at the Windsor and Detroit Tunnel, “35 minutes” (Commercial Flow) and “No delay” (Travellers Flow) at the Blue Water Bridge, and “7 hours” at the border crossing located in Coutts, Alberta. A printout of the webpage is attached hereto as EXHIBIT “N”;
17. On Sunday, February 13, 2022, the CBSA Wait Time Report indicated “Temporarily Closed” at the Ambassador Bridge and the border crossing located in Coutts, Alberta, “5 minutes” at the Windsor and Detroit Tunnel, and “No delay” at the Blue Water Bridge. A printout of the webpage is attached hereto as EXHIBIT “O”;
18. On Monday, February 14, 2022 the CBSA Wait Time Report indicated “No delay” at the Ambassador Bridge, Windsor and Detroit Tunnel and Blue Water Bridge, and “Temporarily Closed” at the border crossing located in Coutts, Alberta. A printout of the webpage is attached hereto as EXHIBIT “P”;
19. On Wednesday, February 16, 2022, a news article published by Blackburn News reports that “Windsor police say a convoy of seven trucks was stopped as it was making its way to the city”. The article goes on to clarify that “the convoy was stopped around 250 km from Windsor”. A copy of the article is attached hereto as EXHIBIT “Q”;

20. On Thursday, February 17, 2022, the CBSA Wait Time Report indicated “No Delay” at the Ambassador Bridge, Windsor and Detroit Tunnel and the border crossing located in Coutts, Alberta. A printout of the webpage is attached hereto as EXHIBIT “R”;
21. On Thursday, February 17, 2022, I accessed digital images and photographs which, based on the metadata tags and my personal knowledge of the surroundings of Huron Church Rd, are an accurate representation of Huron Church Rd from the E.C. Row Expressway to Patricia Rd in Windsor, ON as of approximately 9:30am on February 17, 2022. The photos show that there is no impediment to the flow of traffic caused by protestors in either direction on Huron Church, that concrete barriers have been erected on both sides of the road, and that the vast majority of the access points to Huron Church from perpendicular side streets are barricaded by law enforcement. The distance between the entrance/exit of Ambassador bridge to E.C. Row Expressway is approximately 5 kilometres. A copy of those photos and accompanying maps for ease of reference is attached hereto as EXHIBIT “S”;
22. I make this Affidavit in good faith and for no improper purpose.

Sworn remotely by Sherri Marie Peroni stated as being located in the City of Windsor, in the County of Essex, Province of Ontario, before me at the City of Windsor, in the County of Essex, Province of Ontario, on February 18, 2022, in accordance with O. Canada wins silver, bronze in women’s halfpipe skiing at Beijing Olympics

Three-hour delays snarl truck traffic along Huron Church Road in Windsor, Ont., Wednesday, April 2, 2003. The Sept. 11 attacks created a ripple effect of enhanced security, procedural changes and weariness amongst travellers, especially at the Windsor-Detroit crossing — one of the busiest in North America. WINDSOR, Ont. — There are many tales of border-hugging business owners still waiting for the post-9-11 hangover to end, but at least a few in this bustling border city believe there were positive changes wrought by the terrorist tragedy of 10 years ago.

The Sept. 11 attacks created a ripple effect of enhanced security, procedural changes and weariness amongst travellers, especially at the Windsor-Detroit crossing — one of the busiest in North America.

But Mourice Faddoul, owner of the Windsor-based Moe's Transport, said 9-11 helped bring in money and new technology to the major port over the last decade.

"Everything has changed at the border," Faddoul said in an interview.

"It is all electronic now, with transmitting decals on the window. The transponders changed everything for the better."

Faddoul, whose company has 300 drivers and trucks crossing the border about 200 times a day, remembers a time when it took so long to cross the Ambassador Bridge, portable toilets were installed along the route for desperate drivers.

These days, five-hour delays are a think of the past, Faddoul said.

“What happened before 9-11 was officers wouldn’t know who’s who,” he said. “God forbid something was to happen now, at least instead of having the huge backup like after 9-11, they have a separate system now.”

After Sept. 11, the Canada Border Services Agency and U.S. Customs and Border Protection rolled out initiatives such as the Free and Secure Trade program, eManifest and the Ambassador Bridge Service and Security Initiative to help ease the lines for commercial vehicles.

“In the good old days prior to 9-11, everything was paper,” said Chief Ron Smith, a Detroit spokesman for USCBP. “So a trucker would show up at the border with his manifest and it would have to be cleared and he would have to go into our office to do that.

“Now most of those manifests are cleared right on the primary line, which cuts out what could be an hour wait or longer in our office.”

CBSA spokesperson Jean D’Amelio Swyer said they have also added three truck lanes to the Ambassador Bridge and can operate 13 lanes when necessary.

As far as lines go, D'Amelio Swyer said estimated wait times for travellers reaching the border's primary inspection booth at the Ambassador Bridge are 10 minutes on weekdays and 20 minutes on weekends and holidays.

Despite the initiatives to keep vehicles moving, however, statistics show traffic at the Detroit-Windsor crossing is significantly less than what it was a decade ago.

The U.S. Bureau of Transportation Statistics said more than 15.2 million personal vehicle passengers and 1.64 million trucks used the port in 2001, compared with more than 7.2 million personal vehicle passengers and 1.45 million trucks in 2010.

Some Windsor businesses say they've suffered because of the drop in volumes.

B-1-85

“You grow up in a border town and you can go across freely and that’s changed now,” said James McVeity, the general manager of downtown Windsor bar The Honest Lawyer.

B-1-86

“A lot of people would say it’s a hassle to go across now, but all it is (is) you need more documentation and there’s a bit more focus on security, and that stops people from coming across like they used to.”

Nonetheless, there are some Canadian businesses that still work hard to woo U.S. customers. The Windsor Laser Eye Institute tries to lure Michigan clients with billboards and newspaper ads in the Detroit area.

“Before 9-11 it was 90 per cent (American clients), now it’s about 20 per cent,” said manager Robin Marentette.

“There are a lot of factors – crossing the border and the perception of the big backups and most recently with the passports.”

A decade later, after technical upgrades and efforts to convince Americans crossing the border may not be as big a hassle as they perceive, things are slowly starting to improve – and businesses are taking notice.

Filip Rocca, who owns two restaurants, Mezzo and Centro, on Windsor’s Little Italy street, said he saw a dramatic decrease in American clientele after 9-11, but those numbers are starting to rise again.

About 20 per cent of his customers are now from the U.S. and he’s seen an increase in the last six months – something he credits to more Americans finally obtaining the proper identification.

“The government was telling everyone you need to have these specific documents to cross the border, and I think a lot of Americans never even had a passport before,” Rocca said.

“I think that due to our proximity they’re finding value in getting a passport to come over to Canada because we’re so close and there’s so much to offer

B-1-87

On the American side, Smith said he agrees public awareness is increasing. More travellers are presenting the proper documentation at the border in just over two years since the Western Hemisphere Travel Initiative was implemented, he said.

Border waits for travellers aren’t that bad, Smith added, especially now that there are two or three times as many U.S. customs officers at most locations as there were before 9-11.

“With the technology and the effectiveness of our officers, it has done nothing but improve.”

“We’ve been asked to close our side of the bridge,” said Windsor police Staff Sgt. Jeff Verkoeyen as the situation unfolded. B-1-95

The phone threat was received at 7:55 p.m., causing international truck traffic to back up quickly along Huron Church Road. The bridge reopened shortly after 1 a.m.

By 10:30 p.m. traffic was backed up more than three kilometres to Labelle Street, with transport trucks three abreast plugging bridge-bound lanes.

The bridge was still closed at press time and vehicles trying to cross were being sent to the tunnel.

At 10:30 p.m., the wait was 15 minutes, according to the tunnel’s website.

At Highway 401, the OPP was diverting truck traffic as far east as Tilbury to take the route to Sarnia.

A U.S. Coast Guard captain told The Star that marine units were “securing the river” and set up a no-go zone stretching 1,000 yards on either side of the bridge. Canadian Coast Guard and RCMP units had also been activated.

Chrysler’s Windsor Assembly Plant, which depends on just-in-time product delivery for its minivans, has been on summer shutdown and was not affected by the bridge closure.

Dozens of police and CBSA border officers were seen “swarming” the plaza entrance to the bridge on the Speaking on Fox 2 News in Detroit Monday evening, Ambassador Bridge president Dan Stamper said he thought the bomb threat came from a disgruntled border worker on the Canadian side, adding that he believed the incident may have been sparked by the Harper government's plan to lay off 1,000 border employees.

An official with U.S. Homeland Security in Detroit said the investigation is being led by Detroit police.

Mark Cotter, a trucker from Lansing, Mich., was outside his tractor-trailer near the front of the rapidly growing line. He said a police officer told him he was probably facing a six-hour wait.

"It's really hard when there's only one bridge," he said in frustration as other truckers stood outside their rigs, some of them shutting down their engines and gathering on the median while others sat in their idling rigs.

Referring to the electronic log that dictates when truckers must take a break, Cotter said he was B-1-97 running out of time” and considering a run to either the Husky station off Highway 401 or the next international truck crossing in Sarnia.

“We need to find a better way to get through Windsor,” said Cotter. “It’s just too hard when there’s only one bridge. We’re talking 60 miles to go back to 402. That’s adding 120 miles to my trip.”

Driver Eric Maheu, from Montreal, said he had hauled his load from Quebec and was expected in Michigan by 10:30 or 11 p.m.

“I sent an email to my boss,” he said. “He said I’d have to wait as long as it takes. I guess I have no choice but to stay with the truck.”

Cleo Buttineau, a transport truck driver from Alliston Ont., said the only other time he was stopped and delayed at the bridge was during the 9-11 terrorist attack on the U.S. in 2001. He said he was hauling a load to Ohio.

“All I know is just what I heard on the CB radio,” he said. “I was at the stoplight right before the bridge when the police pulled around me and stopped. Here I am.”

Spat over name tags causing border delays in southwestern Ontario

Tiny tags are causing big delays at two border crossings from Ontario into the United States.

The disruption hinges on name tags the Canada Border Services Agency wants its officers to wear.

"Personalized name tags reflect our commitment to service excellence and reinforce the professionalism and integrity for which CBSA officers are known," the agency said in a statement. B-1-107

But some members of the Customs and Immigration union disagree, seeing the IDs as a potential avenue for disgruntled travellers denied entry to seek their revenge, and are refusing to work in protest.

As a result, traffic flowing into Canada from the U.S. at both the Ambassador Bridge in Windsor-Detroit and the Blue Water Bridge in Sarnia-Port Huron is experiencing longer-than-usual delays.

In its public statement, the CBSA said it was "surprised by the extent of the reaction" and that, "illegal actions and inappropriate behaviour on the part of our employees will be dealt with accordingly."

In a Dec. 5 memo to the CIU membership, union president Jean-Pierre Fortin said their "health and safety concerns" with the name policy had been raised on several occasions dating back to March 2011, including a conference call on Nov. 27.

"We also told management that they should not be surprised by a serious push-back from many of our members who fear for their safety and health and who are determined to pursue every redress option available," Fortin said.

That memo advised members to take an "obey now, grieve later" approach, rather than face "unnecessary discipline from the employer."

Frontline staff concerned about revealing their identity publicly, he said, "should consider removing or amending the listing of their name in public forums."

The CBSA stands behind its policy, however, as it notes other frontline members of the Canadian Forces, Correctional Service Canada and United States Customs and Border Protection all wear name tags on the job. B-1-107

The union said it is investigating the possibility of a legal challenge, but noted the Toronto Police Association lost a similar case at the Ontario Labour Relations Board. B-1-108

According to the CBSA's border wait-time website, commercial traffic into Canada was held up approximately 45 minutes at the Blue Water Bridge, and 30 minutes at the Ambassador bridge Wednesday morning.

Ontario court hearing for injunction to end blockade at Windsor's Ambassador Bridge now underway

Protesters rallying against COVID-19 mandates have blocked crossing since Monday

The protesters blocking traffic at the Ambassador Bridge in Windsor, Ont., have agreed to open one lane of traffic that exits the bridge into Canada from the U.S., CBC News has learned.

However, Windsor police said in a tweet the area remains blocked as negotiations are ongoing.

Protesters began to slowly move vehicles out of one of the exiting lanes, hours before an Ontario court was preparing to hear an injunction seeking to end the five-day protest at the international crossing and just before Premier Doug Ford declared a provincial state of emergency.

The injunction — put forward by auto-industry leaders and backed by the City of Windsor — began at noon ET and is being heard by Ontario Superior Court Chief Justice Geoffrey Morawetz.

- Ontario declares state of emergency in response to convoy protests

On Thursday, Morawetz had issued directives to the city to ensure the injunction was seen by organizers of the protest, telling the city to provide a link where motion materials can be downloaded and viewed, and to issue a news release outlining where the injunction can be heard.

The Ambassador Bridge, which links Windsor to Detroit, is a key trade route between Canada and the U.S., with about $400 million in commercial goods crossing each day.

The key artery feeding the bridge on the Windsor side — Huron Church Road — has been blocked since Monday afternoon by protesters with a variety of concerns, including demands to lift pandemic restrictions. B-1-169

Protesters in Windsor, Ont. allow one lane of traffic to flow from Ambassador Bridge

7 days ago | 0:33

The international border crossing has been blocked since Monday. Early Friday, protesters agreed to allow one lane of traffic to open, allowing traffic to enter Canada from the bridge. 0:33

The Automotive Parts Manufacturers' Association and Canadian Vehicle Manufacturers' Association are the main applicants on the injunction, due to the industry's reliance on the bridge for the exchange of vehicles and parts.

Automakers have been scaling back production on both sides of the border this week due to the protests.

Ford declared the state of emergency as similar protests continue in Ottawa and along Highway 402, heading to the Blue Water Bridge international crossing in Sarnia, Ont.

B-1-169

The premier said he will convene cabinet and "urgently enact orders that will make crystal clear it is illegal and punishable to block and impede the movement of goods, people and services along critical infrastructure." B-1-170

"This will include protecting international border crossings, 400-series highways, airports, ports, bridges and railways. It will also include protecting the safe and essential movement of ambulatory and medical services, public transit, municipal and provincial roadways, as well as pedestrian walkways," Ford said.

"Fines for non-compliance will be severe, with a maximum penalty of $100,000 and up to a year imprisonment. We will also provide additional authority to consider taking away the personal and commercial licenses of anyone who doesn't comply with these orders."

The White House said U.S. officials had multiple conversations on Thursday with their Canadian counterparts, offering to help the Trudeau government bring an end to the blockade. B-1-170

"[They] have been engaged around the clock to bring this to a swift end," the White House said in response to questions from CBC News. B-1-171

Protest a 'national crisis,' says mayor

Windsor Mayor Drew Dilkens is calling the protest an "national crisis" due to the economic impact on both Canada and the U.S.

Speaking with CBC News on Friday, the mayor said more police and RCMP are expected to arrive in Windsor.

- U.S. offers Trudeau government help to end border blockade

"The goal is the preservation of life, I don't want anyone to die over this ... at the end of the day we need to find a way to move them peacefully," Dilkens said.

"So there's lots of resources coming, and the goal and objective here is to have their protesters leave voluntarily ... we do not want anyone to get hurt.... But if they refuse to leave, steps will have to be taken to remove them."

B-1-172

A photo of the Ambassador Bridge, connecting Windsor to Detroit, is shown on Thursday with no traffic on it. (Submitted by Andy Breschuk)

The mayor said that if an injunction is granted and police move in, there may be "prospect for arrest."

Dilkens said he worried about tensions rising further, citing an altercation that took place between protesters and police trying to move a car blocking Assumption College Catholic High School — a school in the heart of the protest area. He said a "group with tire irons swarmed the police," who were ultimately able to de-escalate that situation.

- Ontario has stopped a trucker convoy before, just not the one you're thinking of

"People on the ground here are speaking to media, saying they're willing to fight to the death for the reasons why they're here. And the irony is they're a leaderless group," said Dilkens.

Schools go online over protest concerns

Three Windsor schools moved to online learning on Friday over concerns that the protest may disrupt traffic.

The change comes after consultation with the Windsor Police Service, which said protesters may be "increasing their presence" around the schools, the local English Catholic board said in a letter to the school communities.

- 3 Windsor schools shifting to online learning Friday over protest concerns

The head of the Windsor-Essex Children's Aid Society took to Twitter Thursday, asking protesters to leave children out of the demonstration.

"Respectfully, please leave your children at home should you choose to participate in the protest at the border. As tensions mount, the threat of disorder is increasing. You do not want your children exposed to this, or to risk their safety," wrote Derrick Drouillard.

B-1-172

Referring to a photo circulating on social media Thursday, Windsor's mayor also showed concern about the potential of children being brought to the protest. B-1-173

"The fact that I see a picture yesterday where [protesters] brought what looks like a bus of kids to hold hands across Huron Church Road — even though it was blocked — holy moly, I question the sanity in a decision like that," he said.

Dilkens said that he hopes not to have a scene similar to what's been happening in Ottawa, where large numbers of children at tense protests are making it difficult for police to navigate the situation.

"Police are smart. Police are doing all they can. They have lots of intelligence, lots of resources."

Protesters who have blocked a crucial U.S.-Canada trade corridor decided Friday to open a lane of traffic for U.S. vehicles entering Canada, hours before a Canadian judge is expected to rule on whether police can remove the demonstrators.

A group of protesters, who have choked off most access to the Ambassador Bridge, decided that opening up a lane might weaken the argument of lawyers for the Canadian border city of Windsor, Ontario, and the automotive industry, who seek to persuade a court that protesters need to be forcibly removed.

Truck convoy redirected on Hwy. 401

By Maureen Revait

February 16, 2022 4:09pm

Windsor police say a convoy of up to seven trucks was stopped as it was making its way to the city.

Deputy Chief Jason Bellaire told reporters on Wednesday that the convoy was stopped around 250 km from Windsor by another police force.

"They said they were just going to go in the other direction. It was a simple interaction with the officers who were there," said Bellaire. "They said they were heading to Ottawa, which you can't get to by westbound 401 so they turned around and went the other way."

But Bellaire said the threat of another blockade is still very real.

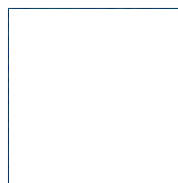

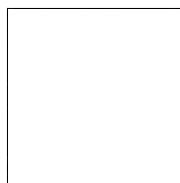

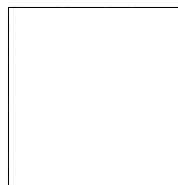

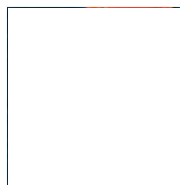

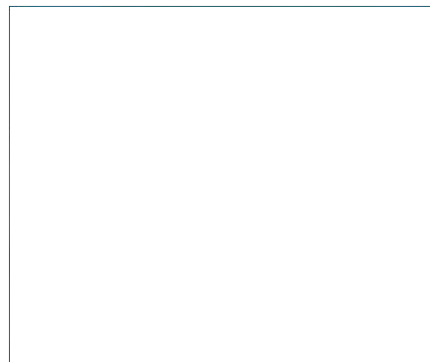

and night, said Bendure.

That's why access to Huron Church Road continues to be limited. Traffic remains restricted on Huron Church between the Expressway and Wyandotte Street West. Only U.S.-bound traffic is allowed on the road, and all east and westbound streets that cross Huron Church remain closed, with the exception of Industrial Road and Northwood Street.

Police were unable to provide a timeline for the reopening of all access points to Huron Church.
